DESIGN BY SARAH FABERGÉ

George Best Egg

Sarah Fabergé, great-granddaughter of Russian Imperial Jeweller Carl Fabergé created the George Best Egg in homage to Manchester United and Northern Ireland's greatest ever player, and in support of the George Best Foundation.

The finial is formed as a shamrock and created in sterling silver and 24-carat gold. The egg is spun in solid sterling, hand engine-turned and guilloché enamelled in red. The European Cup medal stands to the front, recording George Best's part in Manchester United's greatest European achievement. To the reverse, the football League Champions' badge.

The sides of the Egg are graced with the official crest used by Manchester United in the 1968 European Cup Final victory at Wembley; and, from the same year, the Northern Ireland international team's official crest.

The lower half of the egg is decorated with the famous Fabergé swags interspersed with ornamental silver and gold footballs, modelled after the football used in the design of the 1968 European Cup winners medal. The foot is hand engine-turned in sterling silver and gold.

Open the Egg and, in the tradition of the Fabergé family, view the surprise. On a field of gold and silver, George Best is presented, poised to press forward with a starburst emanating from his standing foot. A sterling and black-gold diamond studded football lies at his feet. Sarah Fabergé's sponsor's mark stands alongside the authentic British hallmark.

The George Best Foundation provides charitable funds for research into liver disease and alcoholism.
